2014- RMA- 00023-F	FOIA	10/17/2013	Parkinson, Spencer		TIMEFRAME: Iowa Farm Bureau is working on achieving a better understanding of how crop insurance purchases in Iowa have been distributed across geographic units (i.e., basic, optional, enterprise and whole farm). Because the analysis has implications for the current Farm Bill under consideration in the House and Senate, a quick turnaround on our request is much appreciated. SUBJECT: We need Revenue Protection crop insurance data identifying the insurance unit structure (i.e., optional units, basic units, enterprise units, and wholefarm units) for 2012 (i.e., we need data as reported in the "Crop Insurance Experience with Coverage Level 2012" file that identifies the insurance unit

There are other farms in neighboring counties, but there is no apparent problem with those counties. although a partner, has never had access to business records until now (and actually her partner has refused to give up any records voluntarily other than what we can access on our own), and was unaware of these significant discrepancies between tax records filed with IRS and reported yields reported to FCIC until 3 months ago when my wife and I started digging into public data files to reconcile some accounts. There are -acre farms in Nance County in question---both owned by (50-50 owners of ) and farmed by She is reporting this significant discrepancy at this time, because this is the first time that she was ever aware of this, and she knows that these errors must be reconciled. She and her brother are trying to split up the land ownership and we don't want this situation delaying further business actions. Your help is greatly appreciated. The first spread sheet is a summary of the missing bushels in total from both farms (360 acres) over 5 years. 27% of soybeans are missing over that time and 12% of the corn. This is the difference in IRS and reported yields to federal crop insurance. The second spread sheet gives full detail on elevator receipts, sales prices, revenues, bank and grain pricings.
